NUMB. 3127

SATURDAY MARCH 10, 1744.

Lima, March 2.

HE Infant Don Philip is gone to put himſelf at the Head of the Spaniards, and the Prince of Conti of the combined Army, in order to make an immediate Attempt to penetrate through the County of Nice into Italy. We have no News which Way the Naval Engagement, fought the latter End of laſt Month, terminated. Our Politicians affect to ſay, that whatever becomes of the Battle, we ſhall reap the Fruits of Victory, by ſending over the Troops in full March for Antibes, before the Engliſh Fleet can return. It is confidently affirmed here, that they will embark on the 15th; but we know this to be impoſſible; and if the Embarkation ſhould be finiſhed by the 19th, it would be very expeditiouſly performed, conſidering the Horſe and Arms that are to be tranſported. Some Advices from Paris ſuggeſt, that in caſe the Allies force their Paſſage into Italy, M. Maillebois will be ſent to aſſiſt the Prince of Conti, notwithſtanding the Requeſt of his Catholick Majeſty, that no Marſhals of France ſhould be employed in the Expedition. Every Thing here is at a very reaſonable Rate; and we have a good deal of Money ſtirring, the Spaniſh Officers receiving frequent Commiſſions from Home, and paying, on the Nail, for whatever Goods they purchaſe.

Liege, March 10. Yeſterday his Serene Highneſs, our Biſhop and Prince, made a grand Promotion of Officers of every Kind, to the great Joy of this City. The Count de Horion, Great Maſter of his Houſehold, and Firſt Miniſter; the Baron Broidlach, Chancellor, and Miniſter; Count Sadlinzki, Maſter of the Horſe, &c. The 15th inſtant is fix'd for his Serene Highneſs's Inauguration; and all who are to aſſiſt thereat, have Inſtructions to be ready by Seven in the Morning, that the Ceremony may be performed with the utmoſt Decorum; which is to be concluded by a Te Deum ſung by all the Members of the Chapter, under a general Diſcharge of all the Artillery, and Small Arms. The Old Capitulation conſiſts but of Ten Articles; whereas the New One is compoſed of Eighteen. It is ſtill a little uncertain, whether the new Biſhop will be declared Cardinal, or not, becauſe of the Debates it muſt occaſion. For Cardinals, Princes of the Roman Church, pretend to take Place of all Eccleſiaſtical Electors; whereas the latter, as Princes of the Holy Roman Empire, pretend alſo, in that Quality, to take Place of Cardinals, and of all Churchmen, except the Pope himſelf.

Hague, March 14. All our Advices from the Coaſt of Flanders are full of the dreadful Effects of the late Storm, occaſioned by great Wrecks driven on Shore; but, as yet, we have no Particulars as to Loſſes; only it is certain, that ſome of the French Tranſports are aſhore, and one or two of them have been beat to Pieces. Count Konigſegg-Erps has received certain Information, that the Embarkation at Dunkirk was to conſiſt of Fifteen Battalions, a Regiment of Horſe, and another of Dragoons, both diſmounted; and ſome Independent Companies. On the 2d of this Month there arrived there 12 Men of War and Frigates; upon which they began to embark ſeveral Regiments, and great Quantities of Ammunition, with 12 Pieces of Cannon; from hence we conjecture, that the late high Winds muſt have had fatal Conſequences on the Tranſports on board which theſe Troops were embark'd. They ſtill continue to take all imaginable Precautions at Oſtend and Newport, from an Apprehenſion, that if the French ſhould miſcarry in their Deſign of invading Great Britain, they may endeavour to make themſelves ſome Amends, by landing their Forces in the Auſtrian Netherlands. It is certain, that the Abbe de la Ville does not ſeem to plume himſelf much on the pretended Victory of M. de Court, but, on the contrary, has intimated to ſome of the Lords of the Regency, that if the Republick ſhould, even now, interpoſe, it might not be impoſſible to bring about a Peace. We have, juſt now, received Account from Oſtend, that the Prince of Dombes, and the Duke d'Antin, are lately arrived at Dunkirk; and that the French ſeem to be carrying on ſome myſterious Deſign there, which Time only can reveal. Some Merchants here have received Letters from Port Louis, dated the 28th of the laſt Month, which ſay, that two Merchantmen were arrived there, the Captains of which reported, that they had met Five Engliſh Men of War in the Gulph of Lions, which had been ſeparated from Admiral Mathews's Squadron, while in Purſuit of the combined Fleet, as they were told by the Crew of a French Frigate; who alſo reported, that the Spaniards had ſuffered much, but that M. de Court had loſt but two Ships. There are other Letters from Marſeilles, which give pretty near the ſame Account; but to be certain, we muſt expect the Arrival of a Courier from Turin.
